About

Silkeborg Uldspinderi which was established in 1987 draws threads back to the 1940s, when the family's first wool spinning mill was founded. Since then, raw wool has been the focus of Silkeborg Uldspinderi, and the fascination of wool as a unique natural material has remained intact over the years.

Wool has endless possibilities, because its nature varies depending on its geographical origins and the particular sheep it comes from. In addition, the spinning, the dyeing, the weaving and the processing that follows open up for a wide range of choices when creating these beautiful and lasting products.

Silkeborg Uldspinderi has travelled the world to find the best raw materials and cutting edge expertise – which we found in Peru and Lithuania. The Alpaca lives in Peru, and Lithuania has the specialized knowledge about textiles and the international professionalism required.

Values

Since the beginning we have been focusing on high quality. The fascination of wool as a unique natural material has remained intact over the years, where the starting point has been raw, unprocessed wool fibres which has ensured us the best quality possible.

One of Andy Warhol's most popular quotes are: "The idea is not to live forever, but to create something that will.", and this is exactly one of our most important values of sustainable production; to create products that do not need to be replaced, but on the contrary become a valued part of the home and gain value over time.

For many years we have been known for our plaids made from the unique Gotland wool. Created by Scandinavian raw materials of the best possible quality most of our collections have been produced without any artificial colouring or bleach. The natural nuances of the wool; white, grey and brown are defining components in our collections. All the wool is therefore carefully sorted right after shearing.

It is of the highest priority for us that both sheep and alpacas live in a sustainable free-range and natural habitat with space to ensure that the animals live out their inherent behaviour. Sheep and alpacas are gathered when they are to be sheared and then return to their free wildlife.

Our production takes place in Lithuania and Peru, where we have our own offices, as it is important for us to have long-term and stable collaborations based on mutual trust. We know our suppliers and they know our values. This ensures that both our production and working conditions are well-functioning, which is crucial as we operate in three different countries with different traditions and structures.

Raw materials

Wool

At Silkeborg Uldspinderi, wool is our foundation. We have worked with wool for three generations. From the lightest and softest qualities to heavy and warm Scandinavian wool; as well as from raw wool to the finished product. Wool is a unique natural material. It provides insulation against both heat and cold, is naturally dirt-repellent, can hold lots of moisture without feeling wet and has antibacterial properties. It is flexible and has almost infinite possibilities depending on which type of wool you use and how it is processed on its way from the sheep to the finished product.

Once the sheep have been shorn, the wool is sent to be washed in order to remove any dirt and lanolin, which is wool's natural, water-resistant grease. It is then carded. Carding disentangles the fibres and removes any impurities so that the fleece can be spun to yarns. A woollen jumper or plaid can be more or less "woolly" depending on whether the yarns are combed or just carded. Combing the garn removes the short, loose fibres; this results in a smoother, stronger and softer yarn.

At Silkeborg Uldspinderi our focus begins on the raw wool so that we are always able to ensure that we can attain the desired quality that is then processed and transformed into throws and cushions of a quality that will last for many years.

Alpaca

We work with alpaca from Peru, where the vast majority of the population of alpaca have their natural habitat – in the Andes, where it lives in great herds at an altitude of 3-5000 metres in a climate in which temperatures can fluctuate from minus 20 degrees to plus 30 degrees within a period of just 24 hours. The alpaca has adapted to the Andes' harsh climate with its fantastic thick coat that provides insulation against both heat and cold. The skills of local artisans have been refined down through generations, thus enabling the raw fibres to be transformed into beautiful textiles of exceptional quality. We have therefore chosen to produce our alpaca products exclusively in Peru.

Alpaca is available in several different qualities. We have chosen to work solely with the finest qualities: Baby Alpaca and Premium Baby Alpaca in our throws, scarves and cushions. Quality is determined by how thin and fine each fibre is – and thus has nothing to do with the age of the animal. The fibres are sorted meticulously after shearing, with only the finest hairs being designated Premium. Premium alpaca has an almost silky feel and a special lustre; it is used for our most exclusive plaids.

Nature's Series

At Silkeborg Uldspinderi we have created a collection of beautiful throws in the special grey wool from the Gotland fur sheep and the natural colors from the Alpaca.

The shades on the color card in these series of natural throws are a pure reflection of nature.

Each design is made from the shades that comes with the raw material. After shearing the wool and alpaca fibers are meticulously sorted by hand and divided according to their color.

No dye or bleach added, just the pure colors of the natural fibre.

Design collaborations

At Silkeborg Uldspinderi, we have worked with wool for three generations. From the raw fibre to the inished product. We have always focused on the good raw material, knowledgeable processing and high quality.

Today, the mission is to manage three generations of heritage and knowledge in the best possible way. Managing the heritage is about persistently insisting that a product from Silkeborg Uldspinderi is based on expert knowledge of fibres and processing as well as close and lasting relationships with producers and ubcontractors.

The development going forward is about making crafts and design equal components in the product development. This means letting the two parts go hand in hand and lift each other and the company. 10 years ago, we initiated a collaboration with textile designer Tina Ratzer. This collaboration opened new doors for us and there is no doubt that additional collaborations are the way forward.

That is why we have invited new designers on board – all of which hold knowledge about textiles, xperience and deep respect for the material. We are very happy that Tina Ratzer, Karin Carlander, the design duo Witek & Golik, Susanne Rützou and Stilleben duo each have contributed with theirdesigns and views on textures, materials and colours.

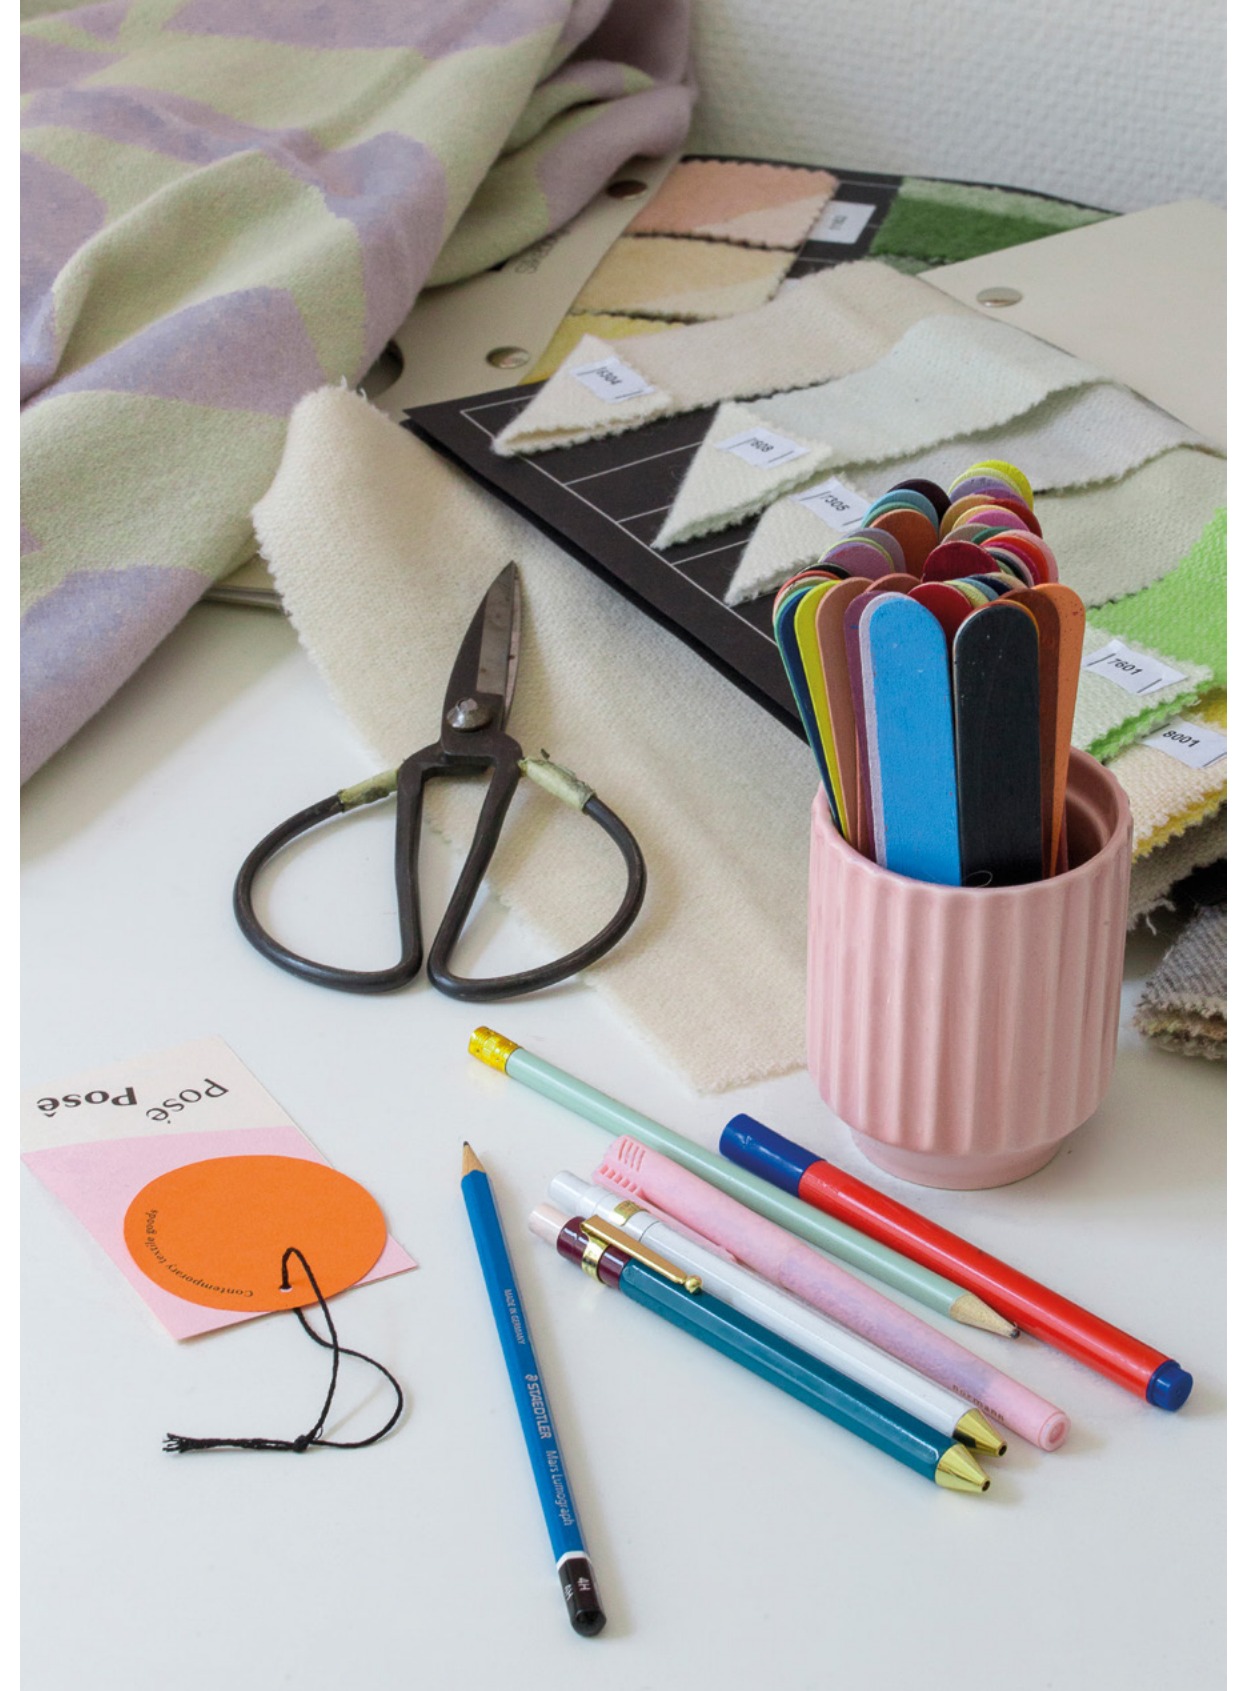

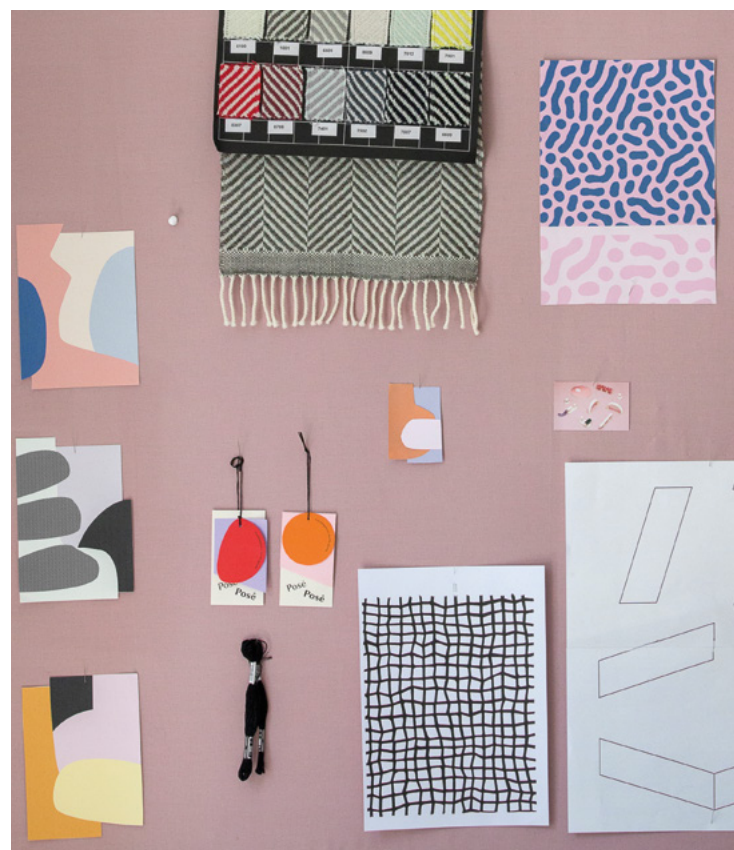

Objects with character

by design duo Witek & Golik

Sisse Witek and Martyna Golik are international in their approach to design. Their signature does not lean towards a Scandinavian design heritage. No tight minimalism – rather fabulous decadence.

Witek & Golik is a breath of fresh air in the collection. They stand as representatives of a new generation of textile designers with an international footprint. They are not bound by tradition but have a deep respect for the craft that forms the basis of their profession.

Throws mean presence

Tina Ratzer

Tina Ratzer is a textile designer educated at Kolding Arts and Crafts School in 1999.

Tina Ratzer's works are based on strong values of beauty, durability and function. A modern graphic and geometric expression characterises her design, which, despite a simple design idiom, stands out from the crowd and highlights her courage as a craftswoman.

Creative urge

Susanne Rützou

Susanne Rützou is originally a clothing designer and her experience in designing and styling is implied when she, with few but effective grips, leaves her imprint on new scarves under the name of Silkeborg Uldspinderi.

“To me, Silkeborg Uldspinderi stands for a loving and a nerdy approach towards the material that leads to a devoted approach to doing something that will last for many years.

A tribute to good craftsmanship

Stilleben

The designers Ditte Reckweg and Jelena Schou Nordentoft both graduated from the Royal Danish Academy of Fine Arts. They are the founders of the popular design shop 'Stilleben' in Copenhagen and shares a passion for good craftsmanship and peculiar object. They see it as their finest job to create stories and aesthetic expressions that reflect the time we live in.

The collaboration between Silkeborg Uldspinderi and Stilleben has arisen through a common respect for each other's craftsmanship and has resulted in 'The Sweater Collection' consisting of 4 wool plaids in fresh pastel colors.

Wool

Wool is a unique, natural product with endless possibilities. For three generations Silkeborg Uldspinderi has handled wool, from the finest, lightest and softest qualities to coarse and heavy wool. All wool types insulate against both heat and cold. They are naturally dirt repellent and have antibacterial capacities.

Wool is not just wool. The sheep, the fiber and the processing have a significant impact on the final product, whether it is a throw, a cushion, or a scarf. The production process from raw wool to the end product requires careful handling with respect for the origins of the wool and the sheep the wool comes from.

Tribute to Scandinavia - Back to nature

At Silkeborg Uldspinderi we have created a collection of beautiful throws in the special grey wool from the Gotland fur sheep. The shades on the color card in this collection of natural throws are a reflection of Nature. Each design reflects the grey shades that comes with the raw material.

The collection is characterised by simple, traditional patterns from the same regions as the sheep. With their softness and warmth, the throws correspond perfectly to the Nordic climate. Naturally, Silkeborg Uldspinderi has dedicated this collection to Scandinavia.

Wool / Alpaca

Wool and alpaca each have their own unique properties and we have chosen to combine in a number of soft, warm products.

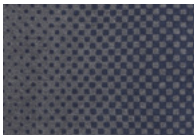

Wool and alpaca insulate against both heat and cold. Wool fibres provide volume and airiness, whilst the alpaca's long, smooth fibres provide extraordinary softness and lightness.

At Silkeborg Uldspinderi we have chosen to unite these two qualities in a number of wool and alpaca designs that combine the best of both worlds. The result is a quality which is lighter than that found in pure wool, but which is at the same time more voluminous and airy than our pure alpaca series. Light, soft throws with an attractive appearance and lots of warmth.

Alpaca

When only the softest is soft enough

Silkeborg Uldspinderi has a soft spot for the alpaca.

The alpaca lives on the world's roof in the Andes, where it adapts to temperatures fluctuating from -20 degrees Celcius to +30 degrees Celcius in less than 24 hours. The alpaca's fantastic fur insulates against both heat and cold.

Silkeborg Uldspinderi has gently transferred this unique capacity to its products together with two other special characteristics of the alpaca fibers: softness and flexibility.

Baby Alpaca and Premium Alpaca is used for our most luxurious throws which are both soft and lightweight, yet warm.

Scarfs - Arequipa

Scarfs

We have developed a beautiful classical collection of scarves in baby alpaca. The scarves come in several sizes. Just like the throws and cushions from Silkeborg Uldspinderi, they are soft and flexible – and once you have tried them, you cannot live without them.

Use it as a warm scarf to your outerwear or as beautiful accessories.

All scarves are woven from 100% worsted baby alpaca.
