FLORA

The Language of Flowers

Flowers have long been a code of communication, across time and culture. From the Victorian art of floriography to the Japanese flower language of Hanakotoba, beautiful blooms can communicate your emotions and sentiments in the most expressive way. Each with their own particular name and meaning, these stunning hand-crafted cups from Royal Copenhagen will convey your feelings in a gift that says everything.

Iris

The Greek goddess of the rainbow, Iris, was the link between Heaven and Earth and the messenger of the gods. To this day, this spectacular flower symbolises communication and the sending of a message. Give a gift that says:

Your friendship means so much

Rhododendron

The rhododendron's flowers indicate the need of caution, for beneath the pretty flowers, the plant contains toxins. Despite this, it remains one of the world's most popular blooms. Convey a sense of protectiveness and the wish for the well-being of your loved one. A gift that says:

I care about you

Magnolia

Before even the bees existed, there was magnolia. Its sweet flower has many meanings according to culture and location including purity, beauty, dignity and a love of nature. The poise and beauty of the magnolia makes it the perfect gift to say:

Your beauty is amazing

Pansy

The name Pansy is derived from the French word for thought; pensée, so-called because of the flower's resemblance to a little face in deep thought. Give the pansy, when you simply need to say:

I'm thinking of you

Dandelion

With its glorious golden head, the dandelion stands as proud as its Lion namesake, bringing colour to the greyest of places. The dandelion's magical transformation represents abundance and the hope of a new beginning. Give a gift of hope and happiness, a gift that says:

May your wishes come true

Laburnum

The beautiful laburnum hangs from its golden chain tree in glorious sunny cascades. Known as Krishna's bracelet in Indian folklore, the Laburnum is a well-known symbol of good fortune.

Give this gift to say:

Good luck

Lemon Blossom

The ancient lemon and its pretty blossom evoke freshness and juiciness. For Victorians, the lemon implied discretion and wisdom while in art history it symbolises fidelity in love.

To the one you cherish most, give this gift to say:

I'll always be true

Morning Glory

The morning glory blooms anew each day, signifying a fresh start; a symbol of affection and humility. Express your fondness for someone special with this gift that says:

You are appreciated

Rose

The rose has long been cherished for its beauty, grace and its delightful perfume. This sacred flower has a myriad of different meanings and is used as a national flower and a symbol of democracy.

But one meaning that resonates with all is that of love and beauty. The rose simply says:

I love you

Cornflower

With its intense, glorious shades of blue, the cornflower is much sought after for gardens and flower arrangements.

But its history is wilder; it has long followed agriculture, growing wildly through corn crops, to catch the eye with its flashes of electrifying cobalt. Its rich symbolism embraces life, fertility, reanimation, power and majesty.

Thus it is a gift that can say many things, not least

I admire you

Tulip

The tulip is a truly iconic flower. Originating from Persia and Turkey, it is believed to be a Turkish legend that gave the red tulip its symbolism. A prince named Farhad was in love with Shirin. When Farhad learned that she had been killed, he rode his horse over the edge of a cliff. A scarlet tulip sprang from each droplet of his blood, imbuing the red tulip with its symbolism of perfect love

You are everything to me

Poinsettia

Across time and space, the poinsettia's crimson loveliness is a vibrant symbol of Christmas. The legend starts in 16th Century Mexico, when a young girl, too poor to afford a gift to honor the birth of Jesus, placed a posy of weeds at a church altar. From this humble bouquet, stunning red flowers bloomed and so the plant took its place at the heart of Yuletide. With this gift, you joyfully say

Season's Greetings!

Anja Vang Kragh

A WILD FLOWER

"I hope Flora will bring nature's imaginative energy into people's homes and onto their tables in the same way as a beautiful bouquet of fresh flowers."

The child of an artist and an architect, Anja Vang Kragh was born to be creative. With a design career embracing couture fashion, theatre costumery, illustration and product design, her distinctive vision infuses imagination, fun and a touch of flamboyance into each work.

With Flora, Anja Vang Kragh conveys the flowers' natural wildness within the bounded form of each beautiful Royal Copenhagen cup and saucer.

The result? Design that is playful, joyful and poetic.
